RECALL
Recognition of Quality in Lifelong Learning

As part of the Leonardo Da Vinci funded project RECALL, we invite you to attend a one day conference on quality in lifelong learning, with emphasis on quality assurance systems in non-formal education and training. The objective for the conference is to inform of European policies and procedures on quality matters, disseminate best practice in quality assurance and offer an exhibit of outcomes from relevant previous and current European pilot projects.

The event intends to allow and stimulate mutual knowledge, exchange of experience and dialogue between policy makers, experts and training providers on quality assurance in lifelong learning as methods for developing and promoting transparency and quality of non-formal training.

The conference is organised as part of the "RECALL - Recognition of Quality in Lifelong Learning" project, which aims to develop and test tools and quality assurance procedures for lifelong learning providers.

Conference agenda

The conference includes both keynote speeches and parallel sessions with focus on delivering information on quality in lifelong learning. The focus will be to disseminate specific approaches and tools towards assessment of training providers and recognition of quality within non-formal education and training. Furthermore the RECALL project will be disseminated during the conference as a possible quality assurance tool for learning providers.

A detailed conference agenda is available on the website: www.recall.eu.com

Project Info

Promoting Organisation/contractor: EDUCATE Iceland
Project Name: RECALL – Recognition of Quality in Lifelong Learning
Project No: IS/06/B/F/164004
Project Duration: 16.10.2006 – 16.10.2008

The project is carried out with the support of the European Commission under the Leonardo da Vinci programme.

The RECALL project addresses the increased need for quality control and transparency within lifelong learning. By providing a commonly recognised quality mark, built on carefully tested quality indicators, the project aims to improve the quality of training provision as well as how learners search for and engage in lifelong learning in Europe.

The project will develop a quality assurance system for lifelong learning providers and establish the results as a set of applicable choices for providers seeking to improve the quality of their provision and promote themselves as an accredited provider. The project will collect quality directed initiatives in VET in Europe and use the results to disseminate a commonly recognised quality mark for lifelong learning providers. Furthermore it aims to develop a commercially sustainable procedure for managing and awarding the quality mark and develop a cross sectoral network of service providers.

The products include application guidelines for training providers, establishment of training provider networks for peer mentoring and self-assessment procedures, as well as guidelines and procedures for evaluators of the quality mark
